OVERVIEW

As a commercial litigator, Kyle represents both businesses and individuals in a variety of high-stakes matters, including commercial disputes, employment disputes and complex tort cases. Kyle brings to all his clients valuable trial experience, having handled jury trials, bench trials, and preliminary evidentiary hearings not only in Rhode Island, but in numerous other jurisdictions in New England. Kyle prides himself on the relationships he builds with all of his clients, which allow him to give informed, candid advice that is in the clients' best business interests.

Among the many different types of litigation matters that he handles, Kyle frequently litigates, and works with his clients and opposing counsel to resolve, disputes between employers and their former employees implicating non-competition provisions and/or trade secret law. Kyle has obtained many favorable outcomes for his non-compete clients, including a national medical care company facing a regional hiring raid of its employees in contravention of the employees' non-competition provisions, which required litigation in multiple forums; a prominent Rhode Island design and manufacturing company facing the departure of an employee who possessed valuable product design information; a parent company threatened with unlawful competition following the purchase of a business; and a terminated employee threatened with the possible enforcement of a two-year non-solicitation agreement.

Prior to joining AP&S, Kyle served for two years as a law clerk for Chief Justice Frank J. Williams of the Rhode Island Supreme Court.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

- Won summary judgment on all counts for a company involved in a $20 million dispute over a licensing agreement.
- Successfully sought judicial intervention to protect the corporate assets of an international private equity firm from a local scheme to use confidential corporate information and fraudulent documents to steal millions of dollars from corporate bank accounts.

- Preserved attorney-client privilege protection on behalf of a prominent Rhode Island medical provider in a qui tam action arising out of the termination of a physician.
- Helped a former employee facing enforcement of a non-competition provision avoid litigation that would have sought to enjoin him from working for his new employer.
- Won judgment for a local property developer when a neighboring property owner sought to enjoin a residential development.
- Won judgment on the pleadings for a national bank that was sued for $1 million in damages under the Uniform Commercial Code based on the alleged forged endorsement of checks over a five-year period.
- Successfully enforced a non-compete provision on behalf of a prominent Rhode Island design and manufacturing company.
- Successfully enforced a non-compete provision on behalf of a local casino operator.
- Successfully enforced a non-compete provision on behalf of a local orthopedics distributor against a former salesperson who left for a competitor.
- Prevented multiple different lawsuits against a national bank and protected its assets through successful advice concerning compliance with Rhode Island's trustee process statute to avoid liability for the debts of the bank's customers to third parties.
- Won dismissal of a lawsuit brought against an international electronic payments processor for breach of contract containing a forum selection clause.
- Secured payment for shares of stock of a closely-held corporation owned by minority shareholders who dissented to a corporate merger.
- Assisted several local residential condominium associations resolve litigation brought by a unit owner.
- Secured the removal of the independent trustee of 25 irrevocable trusts on behalf of family settlers.
- Precluded a proffered expert witness from testifying that a local credit union's former employee suffered from post-traumatic stress disorder caused by the termination of her employment, and then at trial won a defense verdict on that claim.
- Successfully petitioned for the appointment of a receiver of a fledging LLC on behalf of one of its two members faced with the threat of a buyout of its interest for no value.
- Persuaded the Rhode Island federal court to stay federal litigation and abstain from exercising jurisdiction, which allowed the client to proceed in its desired forum and avoid significant additional litigation costs.
- Persuaded the Rhode Island federal court to exercise its discretion in favor of retaining a case in accordance with the federal statute governing supplemental jurisdiction, thereby preserving the client's ability to proceed in its preferred forum.
- Won a motion to dismiss pursuant to a little-used statute of limitations pertaining to the sales of goods.
